

JEREMY GILLENTINE
COUC714 SELF EVALUATION
DUE: MAY 25, 2025

PROFESSIONALISM AND PARTICIPATION TEMPLATE

Below please find the Professionalism and Participation Grading Rubric Template. Please refer to the Professionalism and Participation Assignment Instructions for additional details on completing this assignment.

Criteria	Levels of Achievement
	Advanced	Proficient	Developing	Not Present
Professionalism: Timely	Comes to intensive in morning and after breaks on time; Submits assignments throughout the term on or before the due date	Generally, timely but sometimes a little late	Often untimely
Professionalism: Respectful	Stays purposefully mindful, present, and purposeful during class. Interacts respectfully with faculty and peers throughout the term	Generally respectful	Doesn't stay focused. (i.e., looks at apple watch, phone, or computer during class)

Professionalism: Responsible	Is an active, responsible, and effective team member for the group projects and completes all assignments responsibly and appropriately.	Generally responsible	Does not responsibly participate
Professionalism: Research and Scholarship	Submitted work is appropriately cited and scholarly	Generally scholarly	Submitted work is not appropriately scholarly
Professionalism: Compassion	Attitude and actions are thoughtful, kind, and compassionate toward others	Generally compassionate	Attitude and actions are not compassionate

Reasoning for my self-assessment of Advanced on the Rubric.

Throughout the intensive I was punctual and was well prepared to actively participate. I do my best to always consider how other people may hear my words and throughout the intensive week I was intentional to demonstrate this character of putting others above myself. During the group project I was intentional to fulfill my part of the presentation and work and to support my teammates in completing their part. When we did the presentation, our work used the appropriate citations for the scholarly work we referenced in preparation for the presentation. I seek to live by a Biblical or Christian Worldview and believe that my actions throughout the intensive week were in alignment with this intention way of living. Though I feel I did this well, there will always to continually develop and grow into the man, counselor, counselor educator, and supervisor that God desires me to be.

Synthesis of Intensive Experience

During the Intensive week I was very fulfilled by the decision of the instructors to combine their sections and to co-teach the week. Dr. Lilly (whom I had never met or spoken with previously) was a delight and presented information in a kind, compassionate, yet direct and scholarly manner. Dr. Ford was just as fantastic as she always is and likewise presented information in a kind, compassionate, yet direct and scholarly manner. The variations of presenters they arranged kept the class interesting and helped to give the class multiple perspectives and great and important content. Giving the students the opportunity to prepare and present information regarding the various supervision modalities was both a growing and learning experience as well as enjoyable to see the different personalities that came out through the presentation process.

Three Action Goals

1. I will try to be more open to methods that do not align with my interest and consider the supervisees I am meeting with to determine if artistically inclined techniques could be advantageous for them and helpful in the pursuit of helping them to grow and mature as counselors.
2. When working with supervisees I will be intentional to think about my role as a gatekeeper of the field of professional counseling and to consider if the supervisee is indeed an asset or a liability to the field. I will be intentional to help develop them by helping them to see their strengths but also being aware that some may not be appropriate for the field and make recommendations that are appropriate in such cases.

3. I will continue to review the various supervision modalities and apply them to my work with supervisees. Further, I will self-evaluate throughout my career to continue the process of growing in my roles as a supervisor. I will do this in a manner that seeks to honor God through my work.